The Mandarin Oriental Munich is an elegant hotel, full of character, located behind historic facades in the heart of Munich's atmospheric Old Town. The cultural and historical references combined with functional contemporary comfort create an individual style and a distinctive ambience.

The interior design concept: neo-Biedermeier style furniture and an interior combining neo-style elements from various historical periods combined with a touch of the Orient. The atmosphere is cosy and elegant, with a luxurious feel created by carefully selected curtains, cushions and throws.

All of the fabrics – including the upholstery for the furniture – were supplied by KOS KREBS.

Colours and materials to produce a sense of harmony and well-being

Well-balanced, pleasantly warm and mild shades contrast with vibrant oriental colours. Ornaments and materials chosen for their lustrous shine and tactile qualities prompt an atmosphere of sensual pleasure, enhancing the mood of sumptuousness and elegance. The unusual, varied shapes of the cushions convey the feeling of exquisiteness. The throws have romantically stylised nature motifs, created by laser engraving, which brought together the combined skills of technical innovation and inspired design.

Numerous other details create an overall impression of harmony: with their stylish pole fittings, the blinds and curtains for sloping ceilings produce a special feeling of comfort; the curtains in the suites can all be operated individually by remote control – a luxury. A project perfectly suited to KOS KREBS.
